I am continually thankful that I chose Edgewood College because of its intimate community of learners and thinkers. I was a person who people knew and cared about, and I could return that compassion with trust. Because of this environment, I was able to grow and discover my fullest potential; I know I wouldn't have had that opportunity as a non-traditional student at a large university.

YOU'LL MAKE BIG CONNECTIONS TO THE WORLD OF MUSIC.

TRAVEL

- The Edgewood College Chamber Singers traveled to Quito, Ecuador as the first American collegiate choir to be invited to the International Sacred Music Festival, one of the most prestigious music festivals in South America.
- Dr. Beatriz Aguilar has taken music students to Mexico to research and observe folk music education that has the goal of preserving cultural identity through music.
- Students have traveled to New York City to present original research, accompanied by a professor.

GET PUBLISHED

- Honor students assisted with researching, editing and writing portions of Women, Music, Culture: An Introduction, 2nd edition, an internationally selling textbook authored by Dr. Julie Dunbar.
- Edgewood College students have had graphic design work and music notation published in faculty publications.

This program has allowed me to be a part of a community that is passionate and committed to showcasing the beauty and power of music. The faculty and students in the department have the enthusiasm and vision to take a piece and turn it into a work of art. Without the music program, I would never have had the experience of traveling and performing abroad. My private lesson experience has defied all my expectation and improved not only my technique, but my confidence. The friends I've made here have been the most supportive and creative people I've ever known.
